DETAILED ACTIONElection/Restriction

1. Applicant has made a provisional election of I species premised upon upon examiner's characterization at the close of the fiscal year of there being five species and no generic claims and a presumption the Office adheres to the original species requirement. Applicants asserts there are four embodiments: i) simultaneously carrying out deliver of a new product and collection of an old product.(to same location) ii) the second embodiment relates to carrying out delivery of a new product and collection of an old product at different times iii) carrying out deliver of specific product and of collection of another type of product iv) delivery and collection of products manufactured at different locations; and claim 1 is generic to all embodiments.

The Office accepts and adopts applicant's characterization of there being four species. The previous species requirement is withdrawn and replaced with the adoption of the applicant's characterization.

Applicant's assertion that claim 1 is generic to all species is adopted by the Office. As applicant placed only a provisional election premised upon adherence to the original election of species requirement, the following requirement is made affording applicant the opportunity to elect a species in light of the revised species requirement.

2. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

Art Unit: 3653

Species I: The first embodiment, as shown in figures 1-3 drawn to a method and apparatus for simultaneously carrying out deliver of a new product and collection of an old product, of the same type product to and from a same location.

Species II: The second embodiment, as shown in figures 6-7 drawn to a method and apparatus for carrying out deliver of a new product and collection of an old product, of the same type product to and from a same location but at differing times.

Species III: The third embodiment, drawn to a method and apparatus for carrying out deliver of a new product and collection of an old product, of differing type products.

Species IV: The fourth embodiment as shown in figures 8 drawn to a method and apparatus for carrying out deliver of a new product and collection of an old products to and from a differing locations.

3. Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. § 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Claim 1 appears to be generic.

Applicant is advised that a response to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Applicant is advised that a response to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

4. Applicant has presented an argument that if claim 1 is allowable, all non-elected claims ought be allowable. This argument relates to rejoinder of non-elected claims. A general attribute of dependent claims is that they contain the limitations of their base claims. If the base claim(s) define over the prior art, the dependent claim(s) define over that same art without examination, so rejoinder of the claims occurs (excepting such situations as the base claim chronologically overcoming the prior art via a 131 affidavit or CIP continuity link while the subsequently invented dependent claims fail to overcome the intervening prior art, or rolling of elected group special technical features into a base claim to such an extent as to destroy compatibility of the nonelected and amended base claims under 35 USC 112).

5. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-38 drawn to a conveyor control system classified in class 700 subclass 230.
- II. Claims 39-71 drawn to a method and apparatus for storing and transporting articles to horizontally static structure , classified in class 108, subclass 55.1.

6. Inventions I, II, and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention I has separate utility such as to a system for sorting and retrieving items remotely housed from a point of sale terminal. See MPEP § 806.05(d). In the instant case, invention II has separate utility such as storing clothing. See MPEP § 806.05(d).
